This is probably the most valuable contemporary record of the condition and progress of national literature, for the most important century of its existence, that any country possesses. No collection of English literature can be complete without it, and it claims additional interest for this country, from the complete view which it gives of the literature called forth by the heroic age of America—the Revolutionary struggle—a great portion of which has no other record, and is only known from its pages. Indeed it is the most complete history of English literature, and criticism ever offered for sale, containing the contributions of David Hume, Dr. Johnson, Smollett, Sterne, Goldsmith, etc., etc.

It was edited during the American Revolution by Dr. Edward Bancroft, whose sentiments and views were mainly American in tone. Some idea of its value may be gathered from the fact that Mr. Rich in his Bibliotheca Americana took hundreds of his titles from the work, and the criticisms he has appended are mainly from this source, where indeed they are often but not always acknowledged.

Benzoni was born at Milan about 1519. At the age of twenty-two he left his country to visit the New World, and, after fourteen years of travel, returned and published this work. Its style is inelegant; but it deserves to be perused by those interested in the history of the first establishment of the Europeans in America from other than Spanish sources.—Sabin's Dictionary.

639 THE Crisis. To be continued Weekly during the present Bloody Civil War in America. Folio, 79 Nos.
Printed and published for the Authors by T. W. Shaw, Fleet Street, where letters to the Publisher will be thankfully received. London, 1775-'76

"A periodical published weekly, commencing January 4, 1775, and continued to 1776. The work, which is of great rarity, contains a remarkable collection of papers attacking the ministry and the British government in terms of the greatest severity. Indeed, one can hardly believe that, in time of war, a publication of such a character would be tolerated. In the opening address to the people of England and America, the publisher says, 'It is in your defence I now unsheath the sword of justice, to oppose the most profligate and abandoned administration that ever shewed the weakness, or abused the confidence of a prince.' 'The altar of despotism is erected in America, and we shall be the next victims to a lawless power.' In taking leave of their readers in the 90th number, the publisher says, 'We now lay down this paper, with grateful thanks to the public, and as liberty and virtue have taken their flight to America, the only asylum for freemen, we are determined to follow, and not longer struggle in vain to animate our dastardly, degenerate countrymen with the noble spirit of their forefathers.'"
